The Williamsport Area Community College is proud to be growing in dimensions, both physical and mental, so that it can better serve this world. Students from different parts of the world and the United States come here to increase their knowledge and skills. Here at W.A.C.C. one learns more than just classwork—he learns to communicate with other students from a vast variety of nationalities, cultures, occupations, and age groups. Our students are definitely contributing their share to a better world.

Mr. Frank Bowes, Head of Student Affairs.

Dedication

Intelligence, dignity and integrity are a few of the many virtues possessed by Mr. Frank J. Bowes, Director of Student Affairs. With a background of experience in working with young people, he is "at home" in his present position.

Upon graduation from the Lock Haven High School in 1945, he enlisted in the Navy and served on a naval destroyer until the end of World War II.

In 1956, he graduated from the Lock Haven State Teachers College with a Bachelor of Science Degree. Prior to that time, he was employed in various positions: an office manager in a large resort in Phoenix, Arizona, a statistician for the Pennsylvania Gas and Water Company in Williamsport, Pennsylvania, an airport attendant at the Piper Aircraft Corporation, and the recreational director for the Lock Haven School District.

Mr. Bowes began his teaching career in the Willamsport High School where he taught for twelve years, during which time he worked on his Master's Degree and completed it in 1963. He continued teaching in the same school until 1967 when he joined WACC to become Director of Student Affairs.

Mr. Bowes has always had an interest in young people. While a young boy, he served on the staff at Camp Kline where he received an Eagle Scout Badge. Later, he officiated as an advisor for the Explorer Scouts and was also on the Board of Directors in the Scouting Program.

For ten years he served as Director of the Teen Center in Lock Haven. He presently is a member of the Lycoming Safety Committee and is a board member of I.S.C.A.L.C. (International Students Council Association of Lycoming County).

His duties as the Director of Student Affairs are many: he is coordinator of student activities, clubs, fraternities, organizations, bulletin board information and bloodmobile programs; chairman of Open House, Parents' Day, Commencement, Orientation, Convocation and Student Disciplinary Committee; advisor to the Student Government Association, International Students and student financial aid assistance; director of housing and the Recreation Center; works with the calendar committee, curriculum committee, budget committee, etc.

Among Mr. Bowes' list of accomplishments at WACC, the most outstanding are: communicating channels from his office with the students, working with student loans, publishing the Daily Crier (an announcement sheet which informs the students of all the activities at WACC), setting-up of the student ID system, and being instrumental in the introduction and organization of the yearbook. Mr. Bowes is married to the former Barbara Koch of Williamsport and is the father of two sons, Steven and James.

Because of his sincere dedication to the student body of WACC, we, the Montage staff, respectfully dedicate this 1971 edition to Mr. Frank J. Bowes, Director of Student Affairs.

Mr. Bowes goes over some problems with Tim Spickler, yearbook editor.

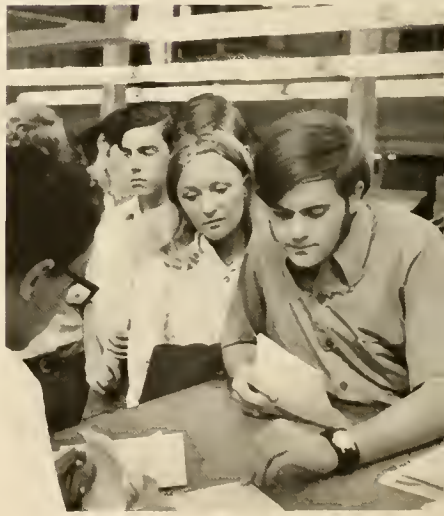
Fall Registration



Fall Activities

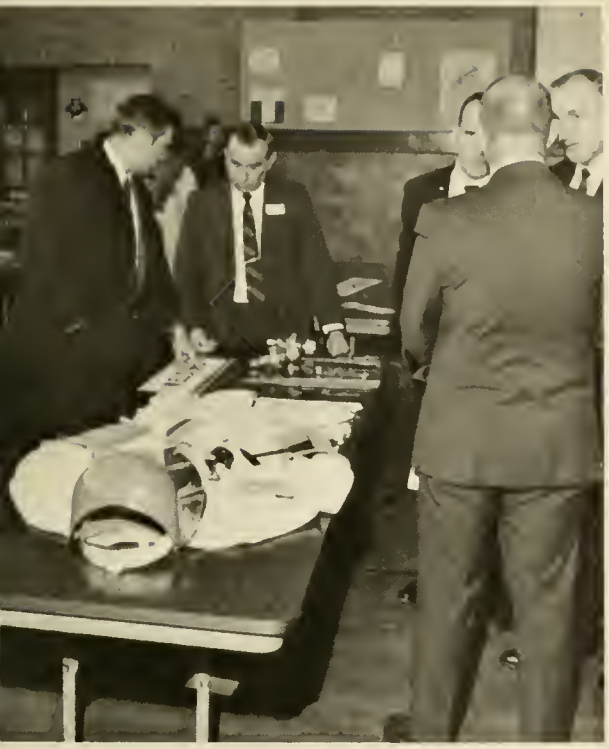
Fall around the campus of the Community College is full of apprehension and excitement. Once registration is over and classes begin, things begin to settle down.

We were fortunate this year to have three speakers on our Fall Activity schedule: Mr. Charles Hosler, who spoke on "Man's Alteration of His Atmosphere", Mr. Woodrow Wilson Sayre who spoke on "Four Against Everest" and Mr. Gordon Taylor who spoke about our environment.

Mr. Charles Simcox put together a series of one act plays which were presented in the WACC Recreation Center.

Parents Day is another function that is not to be overlooked. The college sponsors this event and sets up displays of the various college programs. The shops are open so the parents can visit the areas where their sons and daughters are working and have a chance to meet the instructors.

Last but not least was the bloodmobile sponsored by S.G.A. Their quota was 1000 pints and was reached when Thomas Balzer of the welding department donated a pint of blood.



Fall Weekend

Foul weather failed to dampen the spirits of our supporters even though rain cooled the car rally and postponed the hayride to a later date. The weekend started with a square dance on Friday night. John Sebastion appeared in concert on Saturday night and on Sunday there was road rally and hayride.

Good Vibrations

Fall Weekend Queen, Sandra Young.

L. to R.: Debbie Conklin, Debbi DeAngelis, Marcia Congdon, Sandra Young, Terry Kelly, Sue Heim.

Mr. Charles Simcox directed and presented a series of one act plays presented in the Rec Center of the Williamsport Area Community College.

The 1000th Blood Donor, Thomas E. Balzer.

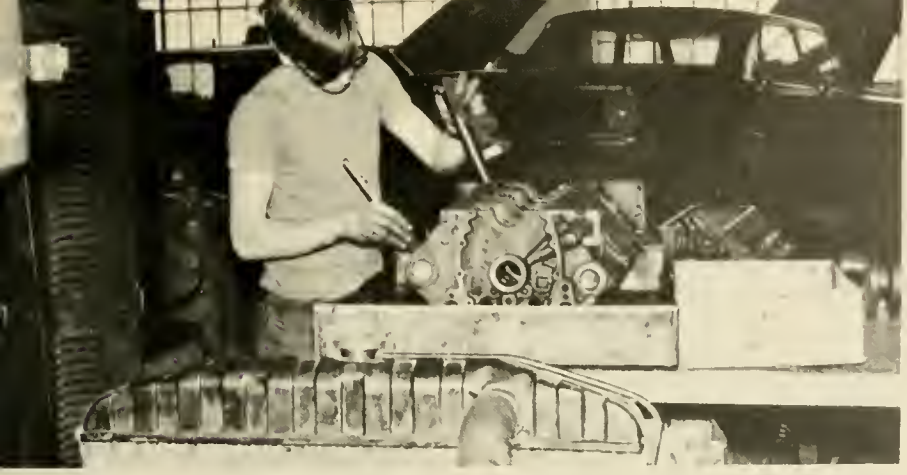
Auto Body

Repair and painting of automobiles is the instruction given students in the auto body shop. Replacement of glass and other parts on a damaged auto are learned so that a student may completely repair an auto that has been damaged.

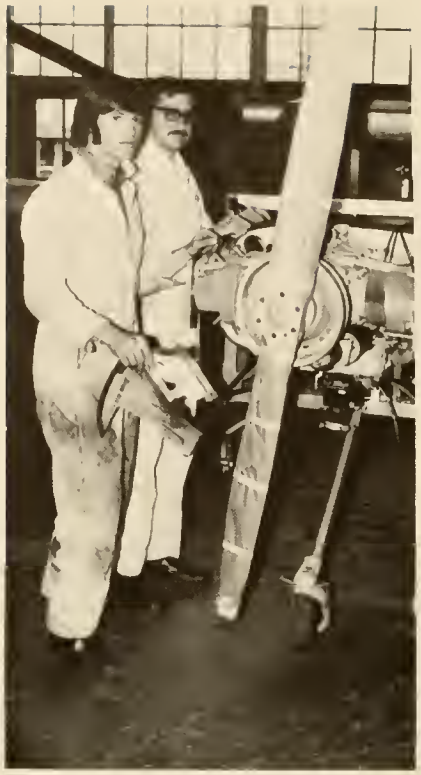


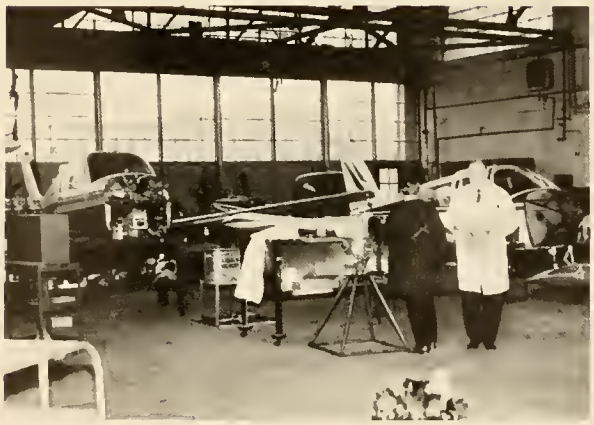
Auto Mechanics

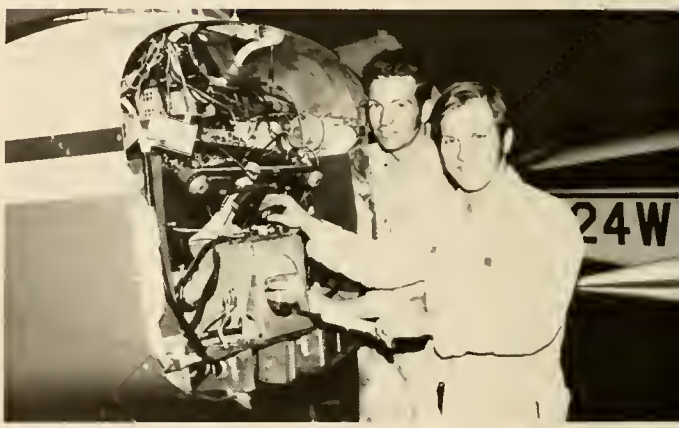
Automobile engines are the main item of instruction in auto mechanics. Modification and repair of engines and drive trains are instructed, along with the maintenance of the automobile as a whole. Proper use of tools and machines used in this trade are learned as well.

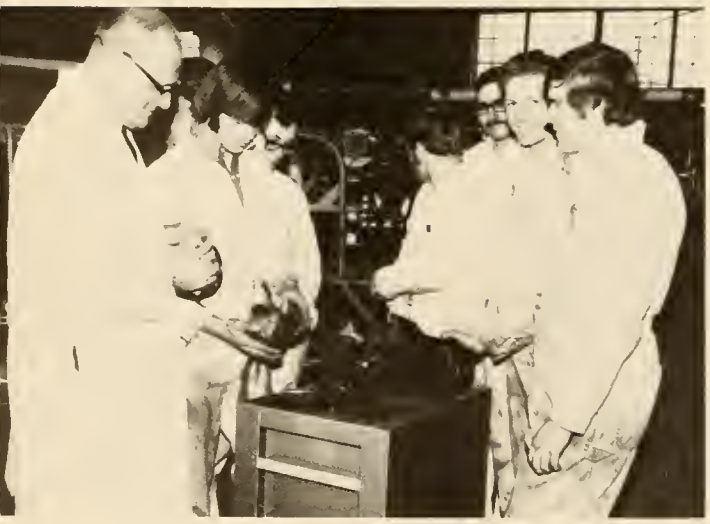
Aviation

The many aspects of airplane maintenance and repair are instructed to students in the aviation department. Engines, landing gear and all other airplane mechanics are under the course of study. Instructors: Norton, Spaide, Pannebaker, Greaves, and Barr are shown in the lower right hand photo.





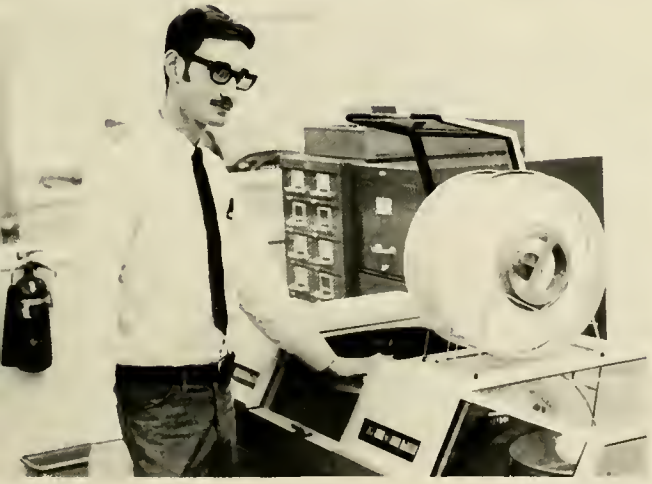




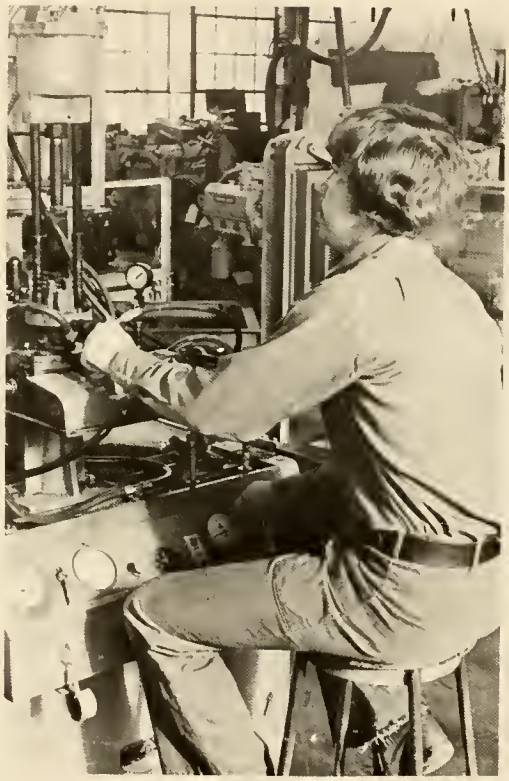
The news media, in both written and vocal means, is the subject of the journalism and broadcasting departments. Mr. Sloan O'Donnell, in the upper middle picture, leads the journalism department. The Spotlight and Daily Crier are published in this department. Broadcasting operates a school radio station under the instruction of Mr. Francis Brennan. (upper right)

Business Administration

Computer Science



Diesel Mechanics



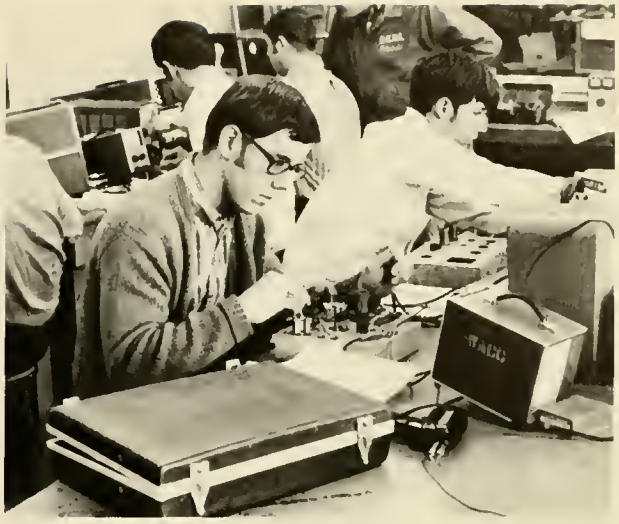
Mr. Fred Jones (center) looks over a problem with two other instructors.

Drafting

One of the largest departments under the Applied Arts curriculum is drafting. Students learn the practical application of drafting and the basics of graphing.

Electrical

Students in Electrical Construction are taught the skills used in wiring and connecting electrical equipment in both home and commercial use.



Electronics

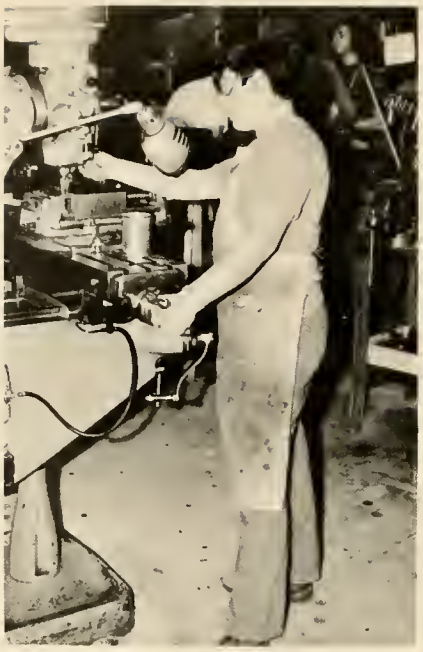
Mrs. Vivian Moon and Ann Reeves.

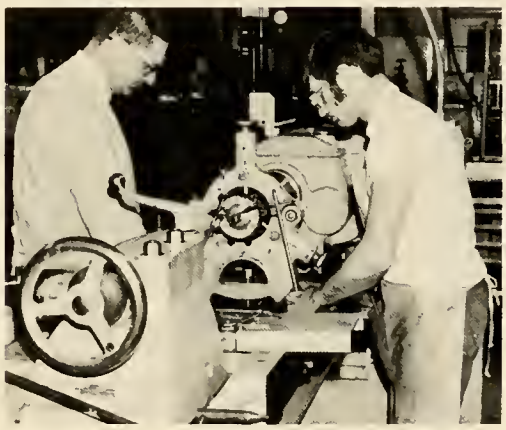
Dieticians are taught in the Food Service Program. Training in diet control and food preparation are gained through instruction and actual practice, plus the values of proper diet where large amounts of food must be prepared.

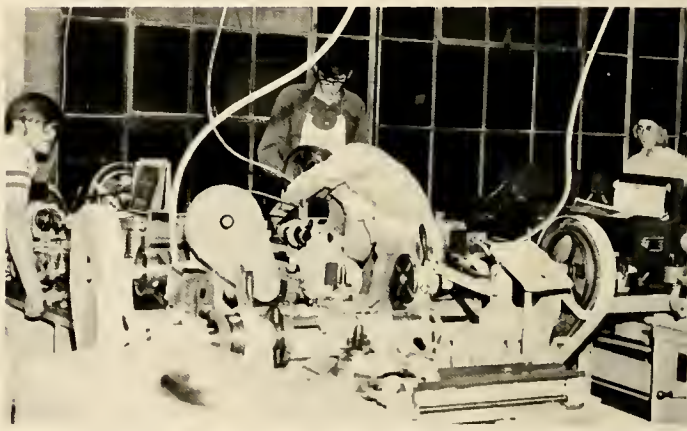
Forestry

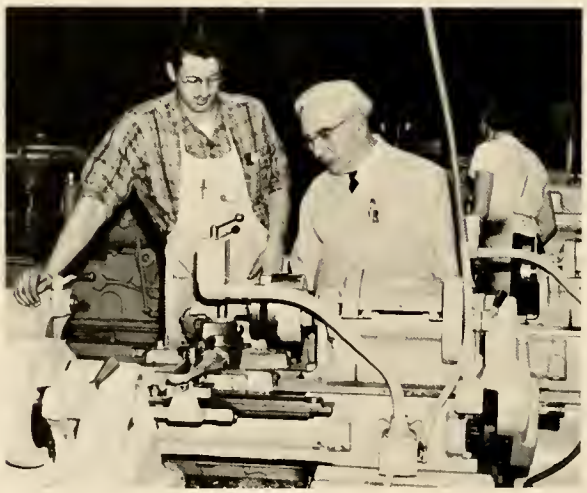
Machine Shop

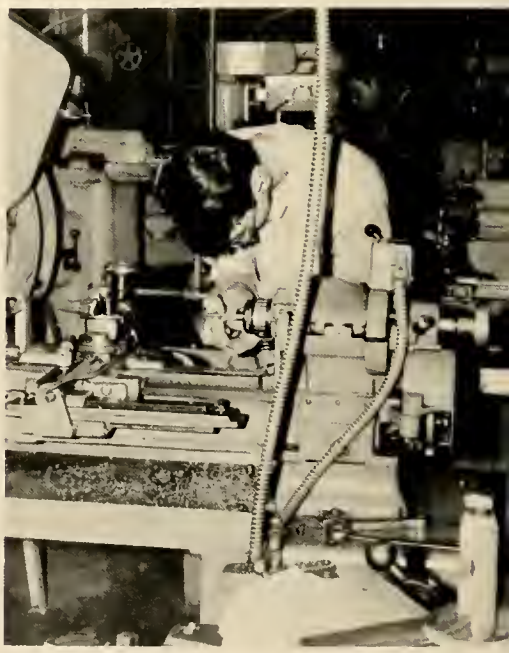
The operation and maintenance of various machines in the tool and dye making process is the function of machine shop. Instruction in design and use of these tools is also learned, as well as the repairs that may be needed while in use.









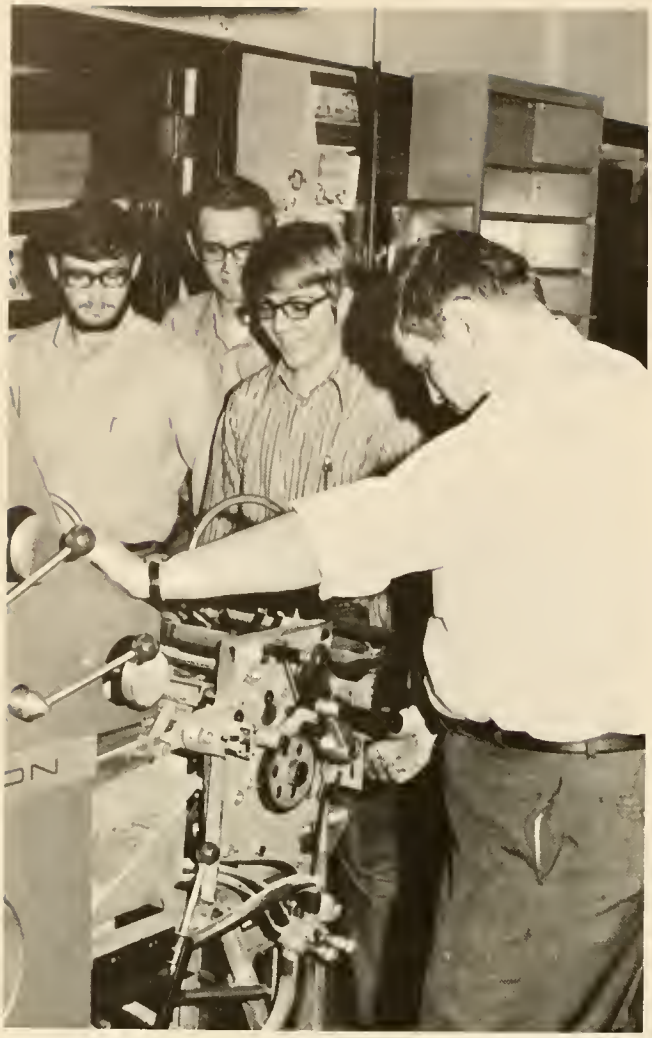


Office Machine Repair

Nursing and Surgical Technicians

Preparing the student for work in a hospital is the goal of nursing and surgical technician training. Patient health and care are instructed to students in nursing by registered nurses as instructors. Surgical technicians learn the procedures and instruments used in operations done in a hospital, as well as various apparatus used in connection with the operation. Actual work in the hospital aids in learning on a practical and first hand basis.

Plumbing



The importance of printing is shown in the amount of equipment used in the instruction of students. Several instructors help the students to learn the fundamentals and operation of the equipment.

Congressman Dow Speaks At W.A.C.C.

John Dow is a Democratic Congressman from the 27th District of New York State. He has been a strong supporter of the labor movement, civil rights legislation, and environmental protection.

After receiving degrees from Harvard and Columbia, he was a business systems analyst for a number of large corporations. During World War II he served on an industry-wide committee to expedite munitions shipments. He was the only member of the House sent by his constituents on an inspection tour of the Far East.

Congressman Dow spoke to the students about a strategic withdrawal from Southeast Asia.

Grace Halsell, Soul Sister

Grace Halsell, author of Soul Sister, had everything anyone could ever want—good looks, an interesting job and a secure income. Yet this white Southern woman, whose ancestors had owned slaves, gave up money and social status to share the frustration of being a black American.

In 1955, Grace Halsell was making $1,000 a month writing public relations copy for a Texas Oil Company. But she felt there had to be a larger meaning to life, and left for a voyage of self-discovery, around the world. She became a correspondent for various newspapers from Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Europe, Russia, Latin America, and Vietnam.

Back in the US she was part of history-making events as a reporter covering the Kennedy Administration. She met the President in 1965 on one of his famous walks around the White House lawn, and he asked her to become a staff writer for him, which she did for three years.

It was John Howard Griffin's book, Black Like Me, which inspired her to drop out of white America and to experience the pain and degradation of living inside black skin.

What she faced was similiar to Griffin's experience, yet it had to be different. Ten years had elapsed since he had turned himself black and times had changed. Besides, he was a man. Miss Halsell would be the only white woman ever to pass as black.

She tells of the terror of walking through the streets of Harlem, imprisoned in a black skin, yet with the memories, fears and prejudices of being white. She felt the climate of hate, when she worked as a domestic in Mississippi, subjected to insults and physical danger. She has recorded with sensitivity her encounters with a member of the White Citizens Council, with the Mississippi police, with long-suffering black families and with young black militants.

From her journey into anguish, Grace Halsell has derived many emotional and philosophical truths. The author of Soul Sister has a fascination story to tell, one which should be heard by everyone concerned with civil rights in America today.

As this page closes the yearbook, it closes the end of an exciting educational chapter in the lives of those students who pass thru the doors of WACC. This yearbook represents many things to many people, but most of all it represents an accumulation of memorable events not soon to be forgotten.

Compiling a Yearbook is a difficult job, which involves much time and energy. It is my sincere hope that the staff and myself have captured, perhaps not all, but many of the happenings, the feelings, and the good times during the school year.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of those students, faculty, and administrators for their contributions, in assisting with the composition of this book. Also a special thanks to Mr. Michael Aldenderfer, advisor, for all of the time and effort he has given in helping to create this yearbook. Special thanks should be given to those staff members who have seen the job through. Namely Don Horn, who always brightens the scene. The girls: Roseanne Tokarz, Cindy Stopper, Lorraine Stopper, and Cathy Emrick for adding a bit of color to the operation; and the photographers Bill Kleese and Greg Kocher for the time they've spent shooting pictures.

In conclusion my hope is that, in the years to come, this yearbook will stir memories and cause us to reflect upon these years—these best years—our years.
